Coil Construction receives award for three mid-Missouri buildings

COLUMBIA, MO. (Sept. 7, 2007) — The Sedalia office of Coil Construction, Inc., has been recognized with “Hall of Fame” status for three of its construction projects in Jefferson City, Warrensburg and Centerview. Coil Construction, a commercial construction firm with offices in Columbia and Sedalia, served as general contractor for all three building projects.

The projects include the Truman Medical Building, a 20,000-square-foot medical complex in Jefferson City, and the Warrensburg Professional Suites, a 14,000-square-foot eye care and dentistry facility in Warrensburg. Also recognized was Heartland Farm and Lawn, a John Deere dealership in Centerview.

Hall of Fame awards are awarded by Varco-Pruden, a supplier of pre-fabricated buildings. Each winning construction project receives an award plaque and will be featured in the 2008 Varco-Pruden Hall of Fame book.
