BP Pipelines presents award to Coil Construction

(COLUMBIA)--- Coil Construction of Sedalia, Inc., was recognized on August 27, 2007, for completing 5,000 injury and incident free hours over the past year. BP Pipelines, (formally Amoco) presented the award in conjunction with the construction of a new office and maintenance facility in Freeman, Missouri. The incident and injury free award includes Coil Construction personnel as well as all of the trade contractors involved in the project.

The new facility in Freeman comprises 13,500 square feet of structure featuring offices, a machine shop, exterior and interior maintenance areas, docks, a bridge crane and high efficiency fixtures and equipment. The company maintains an intense safety program in which contractors must complete a rigorous screening process and meet several statistical and numerical safety benchmarks.

Coil Construction was founded in 1975 by Randy Coil. Coil specializes in institutional, retail, professional and industrial construction throughout the Midwest, with an emphasis on construction projects in Missouri.
